01 Assessment

Of the 7 rooms and objects marked, besides the entrance, 3 sit in their favourable zones and 1 calls for attention. The plot gives its most area to ESE (10.3%) and its least to NNE (2.8%). 3 points below can be improved without touching the structure. 4 characteristics of the property are fixed and are best planned around rather than fought.

CAN BE IMPROVED

01 Mitigate Bath in NE

A toilet spread across 19% NE · 18% ENE · 14% E · 10% NNE + 8 smaller — the most serious seat — health, memory and wisdom drain away. Relocation means plumbing and civil work, so classical practice first mitigates in place (keep it sealed, ventilated and closed). If a remodel is ever on the table: Move it about 2′ 5″ south-south-east, into ESE (East-South-East) 3 zones clockwise. A good seat there: flushes out anxiety and over-analysis — a favourable seat.

02 Work on the N2 entrance (Main door)

Naga — breeds enmity and jealousy. The opening itself is structural, so classical practice treats the gate rather than the wall — and if this side ever gains a second doorway, the favourable gates on it are N3, N4, N8.

03 Free the Brahmasthan of Bath

Toilets, kitchens and water sources in the centre are among the gravest doshas. The centre itself is fixed; what occupies it is not — classical practice keeps the central ninth open and light.

FIXED CHARACTERISTICS — PLAN AROUND THESE

01 Main door sits on pada N2 · Naga

Its position in the NNW wall is a built fact of the property — remedies can soften it, but only construction can move it.

02 NE (North-East) — cut by the plot's shape

A cut Ishanya is the most serious shape dosha — clarity, fortune and growth suffer. The boundary is fixed, so this is planned around through what the NE zone is used for, not rebuilt.

03 NNE (North-North-East) — cut by the plot's shape

The Health · Immunity zone is under-represented. The boundary is fixed, so this is planned around through what the NNE zone is used for, not rebuilt.

04 ESE (East-South-East) — extended by the plot's shape

The Churning · Analysis zone dominates the plot. The boundary is fixed, so this is planned around through what the ESE zone is used for, not rebuilt.

02 Findings

- Main door: N2 · Naga — inauspicious gate
